

THE LATE ELECTION.

A REFLECTION. It may be that a small majority of votes in Pennsylvania will be found in favor of the Baltimore nomination...

The general Government had the great advantage of its appointments and other influences in the State, and the strong, unconquerable attachment evinced to Gen. Jackson...

The result of the October election, so utterly disastrous to the administration party, and so unexpected to all parties...

The Albany Argus of the 12th instant says that the planets Mercury, Venus, Mars, Jupiter, and Saturn are at present all in the same quarter of the heavens...

Experiments tried in a well or drill hole 800 feet deep at Montpelier, Vt. have shown that the increase of heat in descending is at the rate of one degree for every 80 feet...

The state of parties in Pennsylvania is deserving of particular notice—nearly, if not quite one-half of the State stands solemnly pledged against some of the most important measures of the present administration...

The party, then, is established with principles and a rallying point—it successful, a President pledged to principles that an immense majority must approve...

Whatever way the Presidential question may be settled, one thing is already certain, that it is one of the best contested elections ever held in this country...
