DICKINSON SORE

That Dickinson is very sore over the thorough trouncing given them in the last half of Saturday's game is shown in the following from the Carlisle Sentinel:

"Somehow or other Gettysburg cannot get away from meanness that has characterized the athletic department of the institution for years, so that Dickinson could not hear the signals given the Gettysburg rooters made a din and noise and the referee rightfully stopped it. It was just such spirit as this that led Dickinson to sever athletic relations with Gettysburg in the past. Surely the better class—the thinking class of the Gettysburg student body would not approve of such baby conduct, but the wonder is that they have not sufficient influence or authority to see that it does not occur.

"Judging from the fierceness and unnecessary rough playing on the part of Gettysburg team, we judge that somebody must take them occasionally to the Bloody Angle for a talk."

The above stuff sounds very much like the cry of the poor loser which was published in another Carlisle paper several years ago after Gettysburg's 10-3 victory over Dickinson. Gettysburg's cheering did not sound well to the Dickinson section, it is true, but noise was not made with the idea in view of preventing the Dickinson men from hearing signals. This is shown by the fact that the local leaders had trouble to urge the Gettysburg rooters to keep quiet not only when Dickinson had the ball but also when our own team was playing on the offense. The requests of the officials for quiet when Dickinson had the ball were quickly answered with silence and there was no complaint.

The officials were surely vigilant enough to take care of all just claims to "unnecessary roughness." Dickinson's cry sounds much like that of Ohio State who refused to play out their game Saturday because the Penn State boys were not sufficiently ladylike.

Dickinson puts up a good kick however on the poor seating accommodations on Nixon Field. However they should remember that both sides suffered and that many of Gettysburg's rooters have to stand at Carlisle whenever the game is played there while Dickinson occupies their spacious grandstand.

However so long as the memory of that $400 left here on Saturday lingers in the minds of the Carlisle people together with the fact that Gettysburg gained 304 to Dickinson's 233 yards we may expect mourning in the Carlisle camp.

SPARE THE ROD, SAY INSTRUCTORS

Pupils who Require Physical Punishment become Individuals who are Dangerous to Society. Institute News.

During the present teachers' institute a number of the instructors have taken occasion to discourage the use of the rod in carrying on the disciplinary end of their schools but the most vigorous denunciation of the practice was made Wednesday by Prof. C. F. Sanders, who said:

"It is easier to use the rod and enforce obedience in that way than to inspire pupils to a sense of what is right and what is wrong. Welding the rod is purely a mechanical process and the boy coerced into obedience by this means is likely to become the sort of individual who shoots presidents and kings. He will be at odds with society and indulge a grudge against authority which he may vent on some individual.

"I do not care to enter into the matter of whether or not 'corporal punishment' is necessary but I do say that whenever we resort to it, either in the schools or in courts of justice, we acknowledge defeat. A severe physical measure is a last resort in society at large and much more so in an educational institution. It is a confession of failure when we send a man to the electric chair and a teacher confesses every time that he is a pedagogical failure as regards a certain pupil when he finds it necessary to resort to physical punishment to bring about obedience.

"The successful teacher is one who so inspires the boys and girls in the school with good principles that they will not only fail to be enemies to the cause of discipline but will be positive contributors to the welfare of society.

"What makes the little tyrant on the playground what he is? He thinks that he is a supreme law unto himself. Let him know that he is only a part of the show and that the performance can only come off properly when each plays his part. Educate and inspire the children and a far better result will be obtained than with the use of a physical measure."
