NEW SCHEDULE OF W. MD. BRINGS RURAL PROTEST

Baltimore Passenger Train Will Remain Here And Not Continue To Highfield.

NEW RULE WILL HAMPER SERVICE

Petitions are expected to be presented to the public service commission at Harrisburg by residents of towns along the Western Maryland railroad between Gettysburg and Highfield, protesting a change in schedule by which the passenger train from Baltimore, arriving in Gettysburg at 9:50 a. m., would lie over here and return to Baltimore, leaving at 4:25 p. m. The train now goes through to Highfield.

Effective next Monday, March 17, the Baltimore train will stop here and leave again from here for Baltimore, according to a notice posted at the local Western Maryland station.

Get York Service
Communities between Gettysburg and Highfield will still be served by the Highfield-York train, arriving here at 8:17 o'clock in the morning from the west and from the east at 5:53 o'clock in the afternoon.

But residents of Seven Stars, McKnightstown, Cashtown, Fairfield, Iron Springs, Orttanna, Greensboro, and other towns along the railroad or served by it point out that much of their mail will be received 24 hours late under the new schedule, and metropolitan morning newspapers will not be received until late in the evening or the next day.

Mail and express matter from the west will be delayed from 12 to 24 hours by the new schedule, it is claimed. Fairfield, Orttanna and Iron Springs all have rural carrier routes from their post offices, and mail which was received on the morning train from the east will be delayed 24 hours unless it can be re-routed so as to be brought east on the morning train to York.

Circulate Petitions
George Weiler, Orttanna merchant and station agent, planned to circulate a petition in his community and along the rural routes today for presentation to the public service commission, protesting the new schedule, but was prevented by illness from being about. Father Will Whalen, of Buchanan Valley which is served by one of the Orttanna routes, has prepared a petition which he took to Harrisburg today.

The morning and afternoon service between Highfield and York will be continued on the same schedule as previously after next Monday. This train makes connections at Highfield for Hagerstown and the west, but there will be no connection between Highfield and Baltimore on the local division after next Monday.

According to local railroad officials, the Highfield-Baltimore train did little passenger business west of Gettysburg, and the main and express business also is on the wane. The falling off in revenue was given as the reason for having the train lie over in Gettysburg instead of proceeding to Highfield.

Reading was conceded a winner in its game with York, to be played sometime this week. York has won one game and lost eleven.

Steelton and Lancaster will battle off their argument and the winners of the two games will meet on a neutral floor for the league championship.

LOVE SPAT OR FIGHT PUZZLES STATE TROOPERS

George Ginter, Hanover, Suffering From Face Mutilation; One Held In Jail.

GIRL INVOLVED IN STRANGE CASE

George Ginter, 22, of Hanover, is confined to bed by severe injuries, the cause of which is puzzling state police.

Ginter says he was assaulted and thrown into the sand quarry dumping place at the edge of McSherrystown, but friends who were with the Hanover youth told Trooper Hobbs that he flung himself into the quarry after a quarrel with "a girl friend."

As a result of Ginter's statement to state police, Trooper Hobbs and Detective Jesse Crabbs arrested Richard Henry, 20, also of Hanover, Sunday, and committed him to the Adams county jail in default of $1,500 bail on charges of aggravated assault and battery. No date for a hearing has been set.

Face Is Mutilated

Ginter's face is mutilated almost beyond recognition. Both cheek bones and his nose are broken. His eyes are bruised and he suffered a probable fracture of the skull and jaw. His injuries are said to be serious but not necessarily fatal.

According to Trooper Hobbs, Ginter, Henry, Miss Romaine Fuhrman, 16, Midway; Ira Studt, 22, Hanover, and Herman Bechtel, 35, Hanover R. D., motored to Bonneauville last Friday evening to witness a pool tournament. With the exception of Bechtel, all had been drinking. Trooper Hobbs said.

On the way back to Hanover, Ginter quarreled with his sweetheart, Miss Fuhrman, according to the state trooper. The girl lives near the old sand quarry on the outskirts of McSherrystown, now known as a dumping place for all kinds of rubbish and debris.

Self-Inflicted Hurts

Leaving the automobile when it stopped at Miss Fuhrman's home, Ginter is said by Henry and the others in the party to have gone to the edge of the quarry and to have thrown himself into the hole. Trooper Hobbs said. The quarry is 30 to 40 feet deep at places, but Ginter fell to a projecting ledge about eight feet from the top, the officer said.

Ginter was questioned only a few minutes by Trooper Hobbs. In reply to the officer's queries, Ginter told the trooper that he was struck by Henry. The officer said Ginter does not remember whether he was thrown into the quarry or whether he flung himself head-long into the pit.

Gets Medical Aid

According to Trooper Hobbs, the others with Ginter helped him out of the quarry and took him to the office of a Hanover physician, who dressed the injuries and then ordered him home.

Trooper Hobbs said the four others with Ginter denied that Henry had struck the injured man and state police are lending credence to the theory that Ginter flung himself into the quarry after the alleged quarrel with Miss Fuhrman.
