Claim Womanhood Supports Dry Law

Washington, March 12 (AP)—Friends of prohibition placed before the House Judiciary committee today the view that the womanhood of America was lined up in solid support of the 18th amendment and was prepared both now and at any time to combat moves looking toward its repeal.

At the outset the group of women were given authority to present their prepared testimony without interruption. This decision was reached after a sharp verbal clash precipitated by wet members who sought to cross examine.

Mrs. Henry W. Peabody, of Massachusetts, chairman of the woman's national committee for law enforcement, took charge of the witnesses who argued that the wets had failed to provide a "workable solution" in the event the dry statutes were repealed.

SUFFERS SKULL FRACTURE WHEN CYCLE IS UPSET

Paul R. Bingaman, 22, a member of the Gettysburg sub-station of the state highway motor patrol, suffered a probable fracture of the skull Tuesday afternoon, when his motorcycle skidded on the Mulberry street bridge, Harrisburg, and he was thrown in the path of a truck which stopped with the front wheels against his body.

Patrolman Bingaman's condition today was reported to be fair. Clayton Bricker, 44, of Harrisburg, driver of the truck, said he was driving west on the Cameron street approach to the bridge, and was about to cross the span, when the motor patrolman, traveling east on his motorcycle, applied the brakes to his machine when he saw the truck approaching.

Rain was falling at the time, and the street was slippery. Patrolman Bingaman fell from his cycle and rolled over several times, his body stopping against a wheel of the truck. Bricker applied the brakes to his truck as soon as he saw the patrolman's motorcycle skid, and stopped the heavy machine just in time to avoid passing over Bingaman's body, he said.

Joseph Crowley, Harrisburg, and Frank Burris, Steelton, took Bingaman to the Harrisburg hospital. Patrolman Bingaman went to Harrisburg, Tuesday, to visit Dr. S. J. Roberts, physician for the highway motor patrol, about the probable fracture of a bone in his right wrist. Last November, the patrolman fell from his motorcycle and landed on his right hand.

He paid little attention to the injury at the time, but recently severe pains began developing in the right wrist, and it was believed a bone was broken. He had been to the physician's office, and was returning to the Harrisburg headquarters of the motor patrol when the accident occurred.

MEMORY OF CIVIL WAR HERO WHO FOUGHT AND DIED HERE WILL BE COMMEMORATED AGAIN

The memory of a Pennsylvania hero who fought and died on the field of Gettysburg, during the three days' engagements here in '63, will be further commemorated by the city of Erie, according to information received by the Gettysburg Chamber of Commerce.

The G. A. R. post, at Erie, was named the General Strong Vincent post, after General Strong Vincent who was a colonel in the 83rd Pennsylvania Volunteers, infantry regiment. Now word has been received that the new senior high school at Erie has been named the Strong Vincent high school. The school board of Erie plans to erect a monumental statue of General Vincent in front of the new school, similar to the one erected to the memory of the Civil War hero on the battlefield here.

Erect Statue Here A beautiful bronze statue of General Vincent, atop a stone monument, rests on the southern slope of Little Round Top, a few feet from the spot where the then Colonel Vincent received a gunshot wound that caused his death five days later. He was wounded on July 2 and died July 7.

Shortly after he was wounded and before he died Colonel Vincent was promoted to brigadier general. S. J. Kelly, the sculptor who carved the Buford monument on the battlefield, is the sculptor who carved the Vincent monument. The inscription on the Vincent monument reads as follows: "This brigade was hurried to Little Round Top about five o'clock on the afternoon of July 2, the regiment taking position in front of this monument, and repulsed several charges of the enemy, after which the regiment assisted in driving the enemy beyond and in taking possession of Big Round Top. On the morning of the 3rd the regiment rejoined the Brigade on the left center."

The 83rd Pennsylvania Volunteers participated in 31 engagements and suffered casualties of 11 officers and 267 men killed or died of wounds; 20 officers and 150 men died of disease; 29 officers and 485 men wounded. The outfit was recruited from Erie, Crawford and Forest counties. When Bishop Vincent, brother of the slain soldier, came here to claim the body, he learned that a baby boy had been born to a Mrs. Bushman, to whose home Colonel Vincent had been removed after being wounded.

Bishop Vincent asked that the boy be named after his brother. The youngster was christened Vincent Bushman and the mother received a beautiful cut-glass pitcher from the bishop, in appreciation of this act. Vincent Bushman resides in Hanover. The gift from the bishop is still in the Bushman family.

George Ginter, Hanover, suffering from face mutilation; one held in jail. GIRL INVOLVED IN STRANGE CASE George Ginter, 22, of Hanover, is confined to bed by severe injuries, the cause of which is puzzling state police.

Ginter says he was assaulted and thrown into the sand quarry dumping place at the edge of McSherrytown, but friends who were with the Hanover youth told Trooper Hobbs that he flung himself into the quarry after a quarrel with "a girl friend."

As a result of Ginter's statement to state police, Trooper Hobbs and Detective Jesse Crabbs arrested Richard Henry, 20, also of Hanover, Sunday, and committed him to the Adams county jail in default of $1,500 bail on charges of aggravated assault and battery. No date for a hearing has been set.

Face Is Mutilated Ginter's face is mutilated almost beyond recognition. Both cheek bones and his nose are broken. His eyes are bruised and he suffered a probable fracture of the skull and jaw. His injuries are said to be serious but not necessarily fatal.

According to Trooper Hobbs, Ginter, Henry, Miss Romaine Fuhrman, 16, Midway; Ira Study, 22, Hanover, and Herman Bechtel, 35, Hanover R. D., motored to Bonneville last Friday evening to witness a pool tournament. With the exception of Bechtel, all had been drinking, Trooper Hobbs said.

On the way back to Hanover, Ginter quarreled with his sweetheart, Miss Fuhrman, according to the state trooper. The girl lives near the old sand quarry on the outskirts of McSherrytown, now used as a dumping place for all kinds of rubbish and debris.

Self-Inflicted Hurts Leaving the automobile when it stopped at Miss Fuhrman's home, Ginter is said by Henry and the others in the party to have gone to the edge of the quarry and to have thrown himself into the hole. Trooper Hobbs said. The quarry is 30 to 40 feet deep at places, but Ginter fell to a projecting ledge about eight feet from the top, the officer said.

Ginter was questioned only a few minutes by Trooper Hobbs. In reply to the officer's queries, Ginter told the trooper that he was struck by Henry. The officer said Ginter does not remember whether he was thrown into the quarry or whether he flung himself head-long into the pit.

Gets Medical Aid According to Trooper Hobbs, the others with Ginter helped him out of the quarry and took him to the office of a Hanover physician, who dressed the injuries and then ordered him home.

Trooper Hobbs said the four others with Ginter denied that Henry had struck the injured man, and state police are lending credence to the theory that Ginter flung himself into the quarry after the alleged quarrel with Miss Fuhrman.

ROAD PROJECTS IN COUNTY ARE CAUSING RIFFS

Three road projects in Adams county are giving the county commissioners and the state highway department considerable trouble, according to reports received here.

When the commissioners endeavored to secure releases from property owners along the Narrows' road, between Arendtville and Buchanan Valley, so that the state highway department might improve about a mile of that highway, they secured rebuffs from each person interviewed about releases.

The property owners claim, according to the commissioners, that the Narrows' road is well-known for its picturesque and that any attempt to straighten it would mar the scenic beauty of the drive, familiar to thousands.

According to the commissioners, the highway department had originally intended to remove some of the curves from the road, but that later it was decided only to widen some of the present curves and not to change the winding course of the roadway materially.

Planned Improvement The state highway department had intended to improve the Narrows' road from the Elchoitz sawmill to the intersection of the Shippenburg road, but now the department only plans to widen some of the narrower curves, according to reports received by the commissioners. The department has only $9,999 to spend on improving the road.

The commissioners have not endeavored to secure releases from the property owners along the Narrows' road since information was received from the highway department that it planned only to widen the curves and not to change the course of the highway.

In New Oxford, the state highway department and the Paul R. Hoelster construction company, are being condemned for leaving the berms of the Lincoln Highway through that town in the condition they are after a 20-foot concrete road was constructed there last summer.

Berms Are Muddy According to reports from New Oxford, the contractor dug up the stone base of the Lincoln Highway from curb to curb and replaced it with red mud, which quickly becomes a quagmire after each rain. The stone base materials removed by the contractor are said by residents of New Oxford to have been taken outside the town and used as a fill.

The berms of the Lincoln Highway through New Oxford are badly cut up, and several business places are said to have suffered considerable loss because prospective pedestrians refuse to drive off the concrete into the mud in front of their establishments.

Although this condition has been reported to the commissioners, they have told the complainants that they are powerless to relieve their difficulty. The highway department also disclaims responsibility, it is said, because the New Oxford council gave releases before the work was begun.

Hampton Aroused Residents of Hampton are said to be up in arms against the highway department for its announced intention to remove the light standard in the square there in connection with the improving of the Carlisle road through Hampton this summer. After a conference between residents of Hampton and representatives of the state highway department, the department agreed to leave the standard where it is providing Reading township, in which Hampton is located, would assume responsibility for any accidents which might occur from the light standard being near the highway.

Inasmuch as Hampton is not an incorporated borough or town, the highway department has authority to remove any obstacles in the way of a road improvement program. It is said, so long as releases are secured from the proper authorities.

Hampton's light standard was erected about a dozen years ago by residents of that community and not by the township from which the highway department must secure its releases before proceeding with the road improvement program.

The highway department plans to construct approximately three miles of macadam highway in Reading township, beginning about a mile north of Hampton and ending two miles south of that place.

The membership of the church is 327, and the congregation recently erected a $15,000 parsonage for its pastor.

He will remain at Red Lion until the first Sunday in May. The Rev. Mr. Guss, father of the Rev. Walter D. Guss, pastor of the McSherrytown Lutheran church, was graduated from Gettysburg college and the Lutheran theological seminary.

NEW SCHEDULE OF W. MD. BRINGS RURAL PROTEST

Petitions are expected to be presented to the public service commission at Harrisburg by residents of towns along the Western Maryland railroad between Gettysburg and Highfield, protesting a change in schedule by which the passenger train from Baltimore, arriving in Gettysburg at 9:50 a. m., would be over here and return to Baltimore, leaving at 4:25 p. m. The train now goes through to Highfield.

Effective next Monday, March 17, the Baltimore train will stop here and leave again from here for Baltimore, according to a notice posted at the local Western Maryland station.

Communities between Gettysburg and Highfield will still be served by the Highfield-York train, arriving here at 8:17 o'clock in the morning from the west and from the east at 5:53 o'clock in the afternoon.

But residents of Seven Stars, McKeightstown, Cashtown, Fairfield, Iron Springs, Orranna, Greenstone and other towns along the railroad or served by it point out that much of their mail will be received 24 hours late under the new schedule, and metropolitan morning newspapers will not be received until late in the evening or the next day.

Mail and express matter from the east will be delayed from 12 to 24 hours by the new schedule, it is claimed. Fairfield, Orranna and Iron Springs all have rural carrier routes from their post offices, and mail which was received on the morning train from the east will be delayed 24 hours unless it can be re-routed so as to be brought east on the morning train to York.

Circulate Petitions George Weller, Orranna merchant and station agent, planned to circulate a petition in his community and along the rural routes Monday for presentation to public service commission, protesting the new schedule, but was prevented by illness from being about. Father Will Whalen, of Buchanan Valley which is served by one of the Orranna routes, has prepared a petition which he took to Harrisburg Monday.

The morning and afternoon service between Highfield and York will be continued on the same schedule as previously after next Monday. This train makes connections at Highfield for Hagerstown and the west, but there will be no connection between Highfield and Baltimore on the local division after next Monday.

According to local railroad officials, the Highfield-Baltimore train did little passenger business west of Gettysburg, and the main and express business also is on the wane. The falling off in revenue was given as the reason for having the train lie over in Gettysburg instead of proceeding to Highfield.

Local Property Sells For $6,000 Marshall Eck, Chambersburg street, purchased the property of the late Miss Eliza M. Kerr, Chambersburg street, at public sale Saturday afternoon, for $6,000. Personal property also was sold, amounting to $850. The sale was held by the Gettysburg National bank, executor of the woman's estate.

Mrs. John Storm Is Seriously Ill Mrs. John Storm, wife of John Storm, proprietor of Storm's Bakery, York street, is in a serious condition at her home, suffering from heart trouble. Mrs. Storm has been in failing health for some time and recently her condition became serious. A consultation of physicians was held Tuesday evening and efforts are being made to clear up the heart condition. Physicians are reluctant to comment on her condition and the possibility of her recovery.

Y. W. BOARD HEARS PASTOR

Rev. Earl Rudisill, of York, Says Youth Is Yearning For Higher Ideals. "Beneath the complex, fast-moving life of today 'the youth of the nation yearns for high ideals, for good and holy things.' In these words the Rev. Earl Rudisill, of St. Luke's Lutheran church, of York, defended today's young people in his talk on the "Psychology of Committee Work" at the conference of the board and committee members of the Y. W. C. A. in the headquarters building Wednesday.

The Rev. Mr. Rudisill gave his audience a thought provoking picture of the superficial appeal of life today resulting from modern inventions of radio, auto and moving pictures; the changed social conditions resulting from the new status of women as regards employment and suffrage, and the modern emphasis of education upon the material rather than the spiritual.

"Many of the higher educational systems," he declared, "make of religion a drivel, of God a myth, and of virtue a commonality. It remains for such organizations as the Y to demonstrate to youth that Christianity is more than creed, true faith demands a life lived in service to God and man." He discussed as essential characteristics of good committee work a constant study of standards and self-reliance, a tolerant spirit and a radiant Christian character.

45 At Luncheon After the luncheon served to forty-five members of a committee headed by Mrs. W. Raymond Shank in the Y dining room, the group gathered in the living room for a further discussion of methods of adapting the Y program to meet the needs and problems of the women and girls of Adams county.
